PRESIDENT: Motion is lost. Senator Carpenter, for what purpose do you rise?

SENATOR CARPENTER: A point of order. Now are we back to Final Reading in which the chairman of the budget committee and his staff is going to make the determination whether there is any fiscal thing involved? Then I move we get on with the business on Final Reading.

PRESIDENT: Good question. Chair would call to your attention that we will now move to Final Reading which means that we will clear the floor and the Senators will be in their seats. Sargeant-at-arms will please patrol the floor and see that that's carried out. Senator Chambers.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: I think this might qualify as a point of order, Mr. President and members of the Legislature. Suppose there is a disagreement with the determination about what bill may or may not have fiscal impact? Because there hasn't been a motion, it was just stated that this would be done.

PRESIDENT: Good question and I, the chair, I think the chair would rule in this instance, excuse me, the chair will rule in this instance that we will take the matter up as each bill comes along then and if there has to be individual discussion on each bill, why so be it. We'll have to decide the issue then as we get to it. First bill on Final Reading this morning, then it's the chair's understanding, would be LB 68 followed by LB 68A. Moving on then down that list that I think has been perhaps generally circulated, 164 and these are bills that have been examined by the Fiscal Analyst and generally apparently project that there is no fiscal impact involved. Again I would like to call your attention please to the fact that we are moving on to Final Reading and that means that the floor will be cleared. Senator Kelly for what purpose do you rise? Senator Kelly.

SENATOR KELLY: Mr. President, I think you heard that there was a list circulated,

PRESIDENT: Well, I'm sorry, I have one and I thought it had been but it has not.

CLERK: Mr. President, the list is identical to what it was for yesterday's final reading on the worksheet excluding 86 and 193 are the only two that are excluded.

PRESIDENT: Okay, if you'll look on... Senator Syas, for what purpose now do you rise?

SENATOR SYAS: I rise to a question of who put 193 as has state fiscal impact?

PRESIDENT: Well, somebody from the Fiscal Analyst's staff.

SENATOR SYAS: Well, how do they get that? I'd say it has no fiscal impact to my knowledge.

PRESIDENT: Well, Senator Syas, could the chair suggest that you find one of them. I see one, two of them over on the sidelines. Would you direct your question to them, please? Step off to the side and the chair would excuse you from Final Reading over there to do that. Once again the chair is imploring you to please remember, gentlemen, we are moving onto Final Reading. That requires you to be in your seat and the floor to be cleared.

CLERK: Mr. President, 86, 258 and 179 are the three that have been excluded from yesterday's...
